Self-Made Girl

By Hazel Livingston

Hearing of a really good position in another insurance company. Asking for it, knees trembling, voice a little weak—and surprise, getting it!

A hundred and ten dollars a month now, and a bright, pretty little room of her own in the Women's Club. Feeling important, giving her knowledge to clerks in stores, to people she used to know. Comfort, and convenience. Good meals. A bridge game, or a swimming party any time she felt in the mood.

The long trek to the night school over now. Just a French conversation class, and a current events class, and a new Books Reading Table, at the club. For the first time in years, great relief.

If the first two years dragged this one flew. Building to work. Building home from work. Making appointments, her appointments. Meeting new people, cementing new friendships. Keeping up with the old ones. In the space of an occasional evening with Paul, the only one of the three who had had enough to know the too feminine portals of the Women's Club.

Months without a word from Glenn—and she didn't care. Not since summer from Glen. Since and she didn't care. Not since summer from Glen. Since and she didn't care. Not since summer from Glen. Since and she didn't care.

Striking New Jewelry

SIMPLICITY, so they say, is the keynote of modernness.
Loss of girls have found it's the keynote to thriftiness while sporting an effect of a lavish wardrobe crammed with different costumes.
 The simple shirred, dark afternoon frock can alter its appearance to suit your whims and yet keep well within a stringent budget. One of the most striking devices is really good costume jewelry that can be bought at a price.
 Like this chain of Art set designed by Alberta, one of the country's leading young creators of jewelry.

Medieval in inspiration, it is lovely antique silver finished metal, studded with nail-head ornaments. There's a distinctive necklace and a companion bracelet—ANNIE BRINK.

Beauty Hints

DESPERATE, SAM ASKS ADVICE

CHAPTER 421

AS SAMUEL BRINTON said that he supposed losing the Yale and Whitney hair dangles meant the end of the world for Marion, he felt the anger melt running to my face, for I fancied that his tone held something derogatory to Lillian's winsome young daughter whom I love so well.

"If you think Marion was worried about her own pleasure being spoiled, you are utterly mistaken," I said. She never would have asked me to come down for that.

"It was something else in the letter which frightened her terribly, and which I promised her solemnly I never would repeat to Ronald."

"I didn't mean any reflection on Marion," he said quickly. "Please don't be offended. I'm not responsible for what I'm saying. But can you tell me what frightened her?"

"I'm going to," I said. "It was just a sentence or two, and they may mean nothing. But there is a possibility involved which I must consider. Here it was: 'I repeated the boy's statement, that it was ironic that he was so fond of the Yale and Whitney hair dangles. And when he said that he would collect upon an endorsement picture now issued, I had blushed as much as he. I was very much interested in his hands high in the air with a frenzied cry which seemed to be from his very heart. In alarm, I drew away to the side of the boulevard and stopped. He dropped his arms and looked at me wildly.'"

"What are you stopping for?" he said. "Don't you want me to get up there as soon as we possible?"

"Then you must control yourself," I said sternly. "I do not want to see otherwise."

"I will," I said, "I promised fervently. 'Only go on.'"

HOPELESS OUTLOOK
 It was one of that apparently baffling human racket for in a few moments he said he was in a bad way. He said he was in a bad way. He said he was in a bad way. He said he was in a bad way.

Enchanting French Soap

Since the hands of beauty are clean, it is necessary to find the latest reader to attend. We are looking forward to making the acquaintance of many of our readers and members of our radio audience.

Why not make a gift to your own guest book?

Intelligent bride will stick up an Arline Gould soap.

Anything that gives a smooth, soft finish to your skin is a boon and a blessing and if you use it less than a minute on your hands you'll probably appreciate it just that much more.

To have an exclusive fragrance that is a delight—don't clash with your perfume, but seems a fragrant emanation of your self. Very satisfactory if any of your hosts are of the "lavender variety."

These little French soaps are of the finest quality and are so finely made that they will last and last, rather richly and are delicately fragrant—just like a hand of gardenia, jessamine, or gardenia, jessamine, or gardenia, jessamine.

Write Arline Gould or telephone a stamped, addressed envelope or telephone her at Liberty 600, and she will send you one which they have just arrived will be given you.

Stocks Irregular; Coppers, Oils Up

NEW YORK, Oct. 2 (AP)—A few coppers, oils and specialties moved into higher territory in today's stock market, but many leaders either stood still or slipped moderately backward.

A sharp break in the French franc to the lowest in 11 years in terms of the dollar, coincident with continuation of the republic's cabinet crisis, tended to keep numerous traders on the sidelines, brokers said.

Business news was none too bright. Edging forward were Amoco, Cerrito de Paez, Inspiration Copper, International Nickel, Deere, National Dairy, Minerals, Chrysler, Stacey Oil, Standard Oil of N. J., Mack Truck, Servco and Continental Can.

Behind were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Wheeling Steel, Duquesne, Electric, N. Y. Central, Great Northern, American Telephone, Douglas Aircraft, Loews and Johns-Manville.

Ronde and commodities were mixed. Export copper was given another lift and the gold price at London was again boosted as hoarding demand in Europe expanded.

Timely Topics
Searching for trend clues, analysts noted that unofficial estimates of final quarterly freight loads indicated an average increase of about 6 per cent over the same period a year ago.

Principal improvement was anticipated in loadings of grain, cotton and agricultural implements, but a better showing also was

ROCKY AFTER

By GEORGE HOLLAND

This is not, in any sense, by way of recommendation, but a local lad who tells on one of the wharves may not have to work long if he follows his hunches. . . . Last Sunday a picture bounced from the wall in the room of his two-year-old son. . . . When that picture hit it hit noticed the number crumpled on the back. . . . Here, indeed, is a hunch: thought the parent, and he switched his daily 8 number play to the figure he had sighted. . . . Well, a day or two passed and there was no luck. . . . No then he had a hunch, and the dream he was sleeping in the carriage of the lad. . . . Not too bravely, the father took on another four-to-five to his daily play. . . . And he checked for some $500 when the number rolled and denied his belief in the odds. . . .

THE POLITICS BOYS

Despite the fact that Maurice Tobin had a large seat in Roxbury (Ward 8) which once was one of Currier's strongest, he should not be deceived. . . . Reps. John Apple and Charles McMahon, along with 25 other club legislators, shortly will come out to Hill Policy, the new club. . . . And watch for the City Council proxy, John I. Fitzgerald, to pull and return to the council fight. . . . His name will be a moving force for that of a present entry, (Ch. Hill's), . . .

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY

Exhibition's Sgt. Jack Kenney is adept at handling facts, his secret's out. . . . His alter-ego, Sgt. Kenney, is a No. 10. . . . But it comes out only through the lips of Baron Hugo, the arch leader who rapidly became a toppler in the upper brackets, played the Caddy part, tonight at the Somerset. . . .

Police fingers on Beacon Hill (they smart) report they're baffled at signs on cars parked there. . . . They don't have pictures, but they say that look important in the hour future. . . .

Being an ardent big fan, the Normandies Roy Gill has fantasized an automatic scoreboard that spot for next week's World Series game in. . . . With an eye for 1 and all, he's in. . . .

Although Brighton's City Council Ed Gallagher (Ward 23) made up his mind he wouldn't run against his family, would he? . . . But he didn't find himself confronted with an overwhelming petition by more than 1000 voters. . . .

When Boston Police Commissioner Art Frazer returned from his trip to the States, he was met by a multitude of reporters. . . . But he had a change of heart. . . .

Hub Police Commissioner Timmie's long-deferred vacation will be made in the States. . . . But if he ever goes on a honeymoon, will he be Honolulu. . . .

Goulding Directs 3 Films

Warners 'Studio Club' Will Be First on His Schedule

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 2.—Edmund Goulding, who has probably directed more glamorous Hollywood gals than any other megaphonist, has three stories coming his way at Warner Brothers concerning the problems of the fair sex. . . .

The first of these is "Studio Club," now being scripted by Ring Lardner, Jr., and Pete Milne. All three stories are being handled by the Warner Bros. studio. . . .

The "Mark Rocco" deal with Radio has finally been closed with the merry Mark Rocco starring in "Brooklyn." . . .

Well, I guess Gene Autry will find himself out of a Paramount job tomorrow morning. . . .

Police fingers on Beacon Hill (they smart) report they're baffled at signs on cars parked there. . . . They don't have pictures, but they say that look important in the hour future. . . .

Dealing into records of the "good old days" of vaudeville at the Scollay Square Theater, now that the advent variety show billed as this theater the week of May 1932, comprised the following vaudeville acts: Arnold and Wilbur, Stanley and Nelson, Douglas Flint and company, Hight and Singer, Prior, Douglas and Hight, Billy Hallen, and Hight and Singer.

Every one of the above standard vaudeville acts were well known to theatergoers of 1932. Today, perhaps of the entire assemblage one finds but a single name now familiar in millions that of George Raft.
